

ANNOTATION

on the thesis for the master's degree in Religious Studies

Author: Slabodchikova Ksenia Viktorovna

«Comparative analysis of gender discourse in contemporary Catholicism and Orthodoxy»

St. Petersburg State University

Speciality: 033300 "Religious Studies"

Both modern catholic and orthodox church have a range of specific topics and problem fields which are based on existing gender order. This denominations are tend to solve them using their traditional reasoning and previous theological experience

Most of all existing researches in the field of gender question in frames of Christian doctrine concentrate on female experience problems. This work aims to review a wide range of problems: methods for the construction and function of an established gender order and related practices, as well as the prospects of changing in the emerging contemporary Christian anthropology.

During research work catholic and orthodox gender relation systems were analyzed and it allowed marked their unique characteristics based on various types of gender equality and social specifics understanding.